JANUARY 1993

Notice is hereby given that the next stated meeting of the Delaware Valley Conjurers Club will be held on Monday, January 11, 1993, at 7:30 post meridiem. Much to do - read on.

Since it's the start of a new year, we need to hold elections. Based on past performance, this should take about 5 minutes. Come on time or you might get elected in absentia.

New year = annual plea for dues. It's only 10 bucks - such a deal!

At the Family Night Holiday Extravaganza, the winners of the contests were announced. I have trophies for them, so they better come to the meeting and pick them up because I don't want to be carrying them around in my trunk for 2 years like the last time (the trophies, not the winners).

Oh, by the way, the winners are:

Close-Up Competition

1st Place.....Marc DeSouza
2nd Place.....Howard Polykoss

Stage Competition see above

Yet another part of the business meeting will be devoted to coming up with a calendar of events for 1993. Prez Kelly has a list of about 63 things we can do, so we ought to be able to figure out something. One thing Dave has been able to confirm is a lecture by Ron London on March 8. Ron has lectured for us before, but he has a new lecture, he's available on our meeting night, and he comes relatively cheap. Sounds good to me.

OK, once all of that is taken care of, it will be on to the magic portion of our meeting. We will be doing Book Night, but with some important variations. Phase One: you are encouraged to bring a book and demonstrate an effect from it, and then talk about the book and explain why you bought it. Phase Two: a round table discussion on what books should be in your magic library, and maybe even what books shouldn't be there. This could be fun.

And just one more thing - come out to the meeting Monday night and wish Jack Steck a happy 95th birthday. How many people do you know that were born in the 1800's? And can still tell jokes?

Next Month: February. Help us decide what we should do.
