

International Brotherhood of Magicians
RING NO. SIX

Delaware Valley Conjurers Club

Newsletter

SEPTEMBER 1993

Notice is hereby given that the next stated meeting of the Delaware Valley Conjurers Club will be held on Monday, September 13, 1993, at 7:30 post meridiem. Jack Steck, our nonagenarian patriarch, has decided to slow down a bit, and not perform quite as much. As a result of this, Jack is going to be auctioning off some of his magic that he's accumulated through the years. I can only imagine what Jack might have - maybe even an original set of cups and balls "from the ancient pyramids of Cheops," to quote Marc DeSouza. Jack has also made up some grab bags that will include at least one good trick, and there might even be some free stuff that Jack won't take money for. Bring deep pockets, and come out for what promises to be a great auction.

The revised line-up for the remainder of the year is below. For those of you who keep track of these things, please note the changes. For the rest of you who don't plan your lives around club meetings, skip this and move on.

October	Lecture/Demo by Daytona Magic
November	Contest Night (both stage & close-up)
December	Family Night

Magic still in the area: "Castle Magic" at the Trump Castle, "Jubilation" at the Taj Mahal, and an assortment of magi at Trop World...David Copperfield due back at Caesars October 29 - 31.

There's still time, but just barely - the MAES convention is September 9, 10, and 11 in Carlisle at the always fabulous Embers Convention Center. One of the featured acts is our own Dick Gustafson. I don't have any phone numbers, but if you still want to go, you can probably call the Embers.

I received a flyer from the local SAM Assembly about their upcoming mini-convention on Thursday, September 16. It will be held at their regular meeting place, the Polish Cultural Home at 9150 Academy Road in the Greater NorthEast. Registration is from 7:00 to 7:45 (p.m.), and admission is only two bucks. There will be a lecture, close-up show, stage show, and dealers. How they will manage to do all of that in one night will be a good trick in itself.

Also on the magic docket is the Larry Becker/Lee Earle Super Mental Magic Symposium on Saturday, September 18 in Allentown. Two lectures, door prizes, demos, and a Q&A session with the aforementioned stars. Cost is either $39.50 or $49.50, depending upon how soon you register. For more info, contact John Tremblar at 215.253.6335.

Next Month: October - if you have any money left, save it for 10/11.